Can I replace butter with oil?

✓ Answer

> Thought(0.6s)

Yes, you can replace butter with oil, but the results will differ a bit.

Purpose	Butter	Oil (replace)
Baking (cookies, cakes, pastries)	1 cup butter	3/4 cup neutral oil (e.g., canola, sunflower)
Sautéing / Frying	1 Tbsp butter	1 Tbsp oil (e.g., olive, vegetable)
Sauces / Creamy sauces	1 Tbsp butter	1 Tbsp oil + 1 Tbsp milk or cream

Quick Tips

- Flavor: Butter gives a rich, slightly sweet taste. Oil is neutral, so dishes may taste less buttery.
- Texture: In baked goods, butter's solid state creates pockets of air for flakiness. Oil makes the product denser and softer.
- Heat tolerance: Oil can handle higher temperatures, so it's safer for high-heat cooking

How many calories are in rice?

✓ Answer

> Thought(0.8s)

Calories in rice (cooked) - About 130–140 calories per 100g (roughly one cup of cooked white rice). - Brown rice is similar, maybe a few calories more because of the extra fiber.

Other nutrition (per 100 g cooked)

- Protein: ~2–3 g
- Carbohydrates: ~28–30 g (mostly starch)
- Fat: <1 g
- Vitamins/minerals: small amounts of B-vitamins (especially thiamine, niacin, folate), magnesium, phosphorus, and selenium.

Note: These values are approximate and can change with the type of rice, how it's cooked, and any added ingredients. Use the nutrition label on your specific product for the most accurate numbers.
